The Arthur Labatt Family School of Nursing seeks an emerging/accomplished academic to join a leading edge School of Nursing with a 96 year history of academic and research excellence. The School of Nursing is one of six in a progressive Faculty of Health Sciences (http://www.uwo.ca/fhs/nursing/) and offers academic programs in nursing at undergraduate, masters, and doctoral levels. A new state-of-the art building for the School will open in January 2017.

Western University (http://www.uwo.ca) is one of Canada’s leading research-intensive universities. It is located in London, Ontario, with a vibrant population of 423,900. Supported by an academic health sciences network, the region is known for excellence and leadership in integrated teaching, research, and patient care. Educational and research programs are supported through excellent relationships with health care and community agencies in the city and region. Support for research development is available through the Nursing Research Unit, the Faculty, and University. The University also offers programs to enhance the teaching enterprise through the Teaching Support Centre (http://www.uwo.ca/tsc/).

The appointment will be at the rank of Assistant Professor or Associate Professor depending on qualifications and research accomplishments and will be a Probationary (tenure-track) position. Salary will be commensurate with qualifications and experience. Successful candidates will have knowledge, expertise, and a solid record of research productivity that align with one or more of the following fields of study in the School, namely Leadership in Nursing Education, Leadership in Health Services Delivery, or Leadership in Health Promotion and Advanced Nursing Practice. We seek candidates with scholarship, preferably in one or more of the following areas: pedagogy and curriculum, advanced quantitative research methods, aging, chronicity, diversity, advanced clinical practice, or nursing work environments to align with the School’s Strategic Plan http://www.uwo.ca/fhs/nursing/about/strat_plan.html and the signature areas identified in the Faculty of Health Sciences’ Strategic Research Plan at http://www.uwo.ca/fhs/research/files/strat_research_plan_2016.pdf.

We welcome applications from highly motivated individuals who have a strong commitment to excellence in research and education, and can flourish in changing academic and health care environments. We encourage applicants who appreciate the diversity of research, practice, education, and service delivery within Nursing and are prepared to take on the challenge of positioning the nursing profession for the future.

As the successful candidate, you will have a PhD in Nursing (or related discipline), and have an independent, robust research program in your field of study. Individuals with established track records of teaching and research are preferred; however, these accomplishments will be compelling for the rank of Associate Professor. You will also have demonstrated skills mentoring students and an outstanding record of teaching in graduate and/or undergraduate programs. In addition to your research and scholarly activity, you will be responsible for teaching across programs offered in the School, as well as service to the School, Faculty, University, and Profession as appropriate. Applicants for this position will be Registered Nurses (Regular or Extended class) who are eligible to practice with no restrictions with the College of Nurses of Ontario.
