Chair, Department of Physiology and Pharmacology

The Schulich School of Medicine & Dentistry, at Western University, London, Ontario, Canada is inviting applications for the position of Chair in the Department of Physiology and Pharmacology.

The Department of Physiology and Pharmacology is the largest basic science department in the Schulich School of Medicine & Dentistry at Western University, serving as the academic home for about 84 full-time and cross-appointed faculty members, 80 graduate students, 40 postdoctoral fellows, and 45 administrative and research staff. The Department fosters productive academic and research collaborations with other Departments at Western, affiliated hospitals, and research institutes in London and worldwide. It has strong ties with the Division of Clinical Pharmacology in the Department of Medicine, through recruitment of faculty members, collaborative research, and education programs.

A distinctive strength of the Department is the comprehensive focus on biological processes from the cellular-molecular to systems levels, and on the effects of drugs on these processes. The areas of research excellence include clinical and basic pharmacology; cardiovascular sciences; cell, development and cancer biology; reproductive biology and endocrinology; and neuroscience. Faculty members in this Department are leaders in Western's Clusters of Research Excellence: Cognitive Neuroscience and Musculoskeletal Health. The Department has access to state-of-the-art infrastructure for research and teaching (http://www.schulich.uwo.ca/physpharm/about_us/index.html). The Department of Physiology and Pharmacology has a strong commitment to graduate and undergraduate education, offering degrees at the BMSc, MSc, and PhD levels.

The successful candidate should have a demonstrated record of success as an independent scientist, as indicated by peer-reviewed publications and grants, demonstrated excellence in teaching, including graduate student supervision at the doctoral level, and evidence of effective interpersonal, administrative, and leadership skills. The new Chair will be expected to champion the research and education initiatives of the Department and to develop new scholarly initiatives. The successful candidate must have a PhD, MD, DDS or equivalent, and would be appointed at the rank of Associate Professor or Professor with tenure as appropriate. The position of Chair is for a five year term, normally renewable once. Compensation for this position will be commensurate with qualifications and experience.
