Department of Philosophy

Philosophy 1020 (200): Introduction to Philosophy 2023-24

Full year, asynchronous on-line lectures with weekly synchronous in person tutorials

Description

A look at some central questions in philosophy, including: Does God exist? What is knowledge? Truth? How do we distinguish between right and wrong? What justifies political authority? Does morality ever permit or require us to break the law? Specific topics will include: race and racism, fake news, and the justification and limits of rights in property. Examples and case studies will be drawn from a wide range of disciplines and areas, from the natural and social sciences to art and music.

Objectives

This course has three main objectives. The first is to introduce students to a number of core issues in philosophy and to some historically and conceptually significant answers to enduring philosophical questions concerning, for example, the existence of God, the principles of morality and justice, and the nature of reality and of knowledge. The second is to show how philosophical questions are inescapable, and raised throughout our lives. The third is to help students develop the skills philosophy requires: careful reading, critical thinking, and clear writing.

Format

In place of traditional, live lectures, I will provide two narrated slide shows per week. These will be organized in weekly “lessons” on the course OWL page. Each lesson will also include some readings. These will be released on a weekly basis, at noon Monday. You will meet for an hour a week in a tutorial led by a teaching assistant, in person on campus.

Texts

All readings will be available online, on the course OWL page.

Requirements and evaluation

- 1) Four short papers (750 words each):  $10\% \times 4 = 40\%$
- 2) Two non-cumulative exams, one at the end of each term:  $20\% \times 2 = 40\%$
- 3) Participation in on-line forum discussions:  $5\%/term \times 2 = 10\%$
- 4) Participation in tutorials (may include short in-class writing exercises):  $5\%/term \times 2 = 10\%$

More details on each of these requirements will be made available on the course OWL page.

There will also be optional weekly online quizzes (very short: 4 multiple choice questions) with which you can test your understanding of the week's readings and lectures.

Late papers

Late papers will be subject to a penalty of 2%/day, to a maximum of 10%. We will accept papers after they have accumulated the full penalty. The last day we will accept papers assigned in first term is the last day of classes in first term, December 8, 2023. The last day we will accept papers assigned in second term is the last of classes in second term, April 8, 2024.

If you need an extension on a paper, you will need to see an academic counsellor in the office of the dean of your faculty. Your counsellor will get in touch with your TA and me with any recommendations they have. We are not permitted to accept any documentation, medical or otherwise; please submit those to your counsellor. See below, under "Accommodation" under "Department Policies" for more information.

Communication

I will regularly post announcements on the course OWL page. These will also be sent as e-mails to your uwo e-mail accounts. They will stay on the OWL page until the course is over. You can always e-mail me with questions, at klimchuk@uwo.ca
