An Introduction to Ethics and Value Theory

DESCRIPTION

This course introduces students to the attempts by scholars to understand whether, and the degree to which, humans can/should be held responsible for their actions. Do humans have ethical duties and responsibilities toward one another or themselves? If so, what are the foundations of those ethical duties, and what do they demand? Our survey of the scholarly responses to these questions will be separated in two parts: First a review of prominent positions on meta-ethics, followed by a survey of the four dominant ethical theories.

OBJECTIVES

The primary goal of this course is to introduce students to and/or build upon a set of standard philosophical skills. The combination of readings, lectures, and essay assignments in this course will help students develop their ability to identify what it is that makes the set of reasons that support the conclusions of an argument either convincing or implausible by requiring them to formulate well-reasoned responses to the arguments engaged throughout the course.

The secondary goal of this course is to introduce students to the historically dominant discussions of ethical concerns undertaken by philosophers. Student understanding of those discussions will be assessed on the mid-term and final exams.

REQUIREMENTS

50% - two 1100 – 1300 word essays, worth 25% each
